

In some cases, the family turns out to be the most dangerous and widespread “secret society” of the world, within which physical, psychological, energetic and sexual violence flagrantly take place. There is no escape route because the “leaders” are disguised as “loving parents” and therefore the children have to be “grateful”, which constitutes a further insult and additional suffering. In such situations the children manage to survive despite their harassing parents, but they must “dishonor father and mother” to heal their wounds. Through the “Inner and practical remedies” presented here, the application of “The Statute of psychological Rights and Duties” and the Law of Attraction, the sons and daughters will be able to overturn the role of the “victim” and move into a “successful life” in harmony with their personal feelings.

Manipulative relationships create physical, psychological, economic and social discomfort of different types, depending on the degree of cruelty of the manipulative partner. The victims of “emotional dependence” are unable to react to their abusive partner because they have lowered their guard “in the name of love”.

Sexuality and emotional nourishment entice people to live pathological relationships disguised as great passions or loves, in which, in reality, the “emotional and sexual serial killer” destroys his or her partner day by day. Victims and perpetrators can release themselves from their “emotional prisons” by realizing that their destructive relationships replay the dynamics already experienced with their parents. The psychic rehabilitation and remedies proposed in this book will heal the past and present-day family-related wounds, enabling the individual to become a winner and to create “healthy, loving and nourishing relationships.”

Sexual manipulations are practiced by those who have established a “bond of trust” with their victims, taking advantage of their “good faith” and mystifying the meaning of love, care and education.

Therefore, such manipulations are perpetrated by family members such as the father, mother, brothers, grandparents, uncles, cousins, or “trusted strangers” like babysitters, neighbors, kindergarten teachers, educators, coaches, music teachers, priests or doctors, who do it for several reasons: sexual pleasure, economic advantage, domination, sadism or “rituals”. This book is a “practical guide” for professionals involved with the care of the trauma of abused victims and a tool to decode the new diagnostic category of the “Abused Personality Disorder”.

The wounds of rejection, betrayal, abandonment, humiliation and injustice lead to a poor self-esteem, to which individuals react with violent behaviors against others or against themselves.

Understanding the motivations of suffering by the individual, families, people in all sorts of relationships and societies enables us to find the common thread that illuminates the existence: an “inner lighthouse” that indicates the way out of the pain through the knowledge of the self, of one’s own limits and of the “evolutionary design “that connects our various lives.

Awareness sets a person free and transforms him or her into a “winner”, because the individual goes from being solely an actor to becoming the director, writer and producer of his or her own life. Through positive thinking, the law of attraction and quantum physics these people can change their life by “shaping the energy” to their advantage.

Abusive Parents pass rape off as love, which is the worst crime they can perpetrate: to sexually abuse their children, using them for their own pleasure, inflicting physical, psychological and moral damage instead of loving and nurturing their children according to their needs, while protecting and guiding them.

The reality far exceeds the imagination: the atrocities experienced in everyday life by the victims are devastating, many are the “shattered lives” by “manipulations”, “perversions” and “sadism” in some cases of both parents with the complicity of the family of origin. Such violence is unfortunately so widespread that it can be classified into specific categories for both: abusive parents and abused children. The “awareness” together with the “Inner and practical remedies” provide the means to heal the wounds and become a winner.

Conscious people are confronted with the long standing theme of betrayal, be that by their “beloved ones” or by “strangers”, given that there are numerous ways to betray the trust of others or, on the contrary, to betray one’s own personality.

Betrayal allows people to become real adults: Once the storm that batters each person’s predefined scheme is over, both the cheater and the cheated upon will learn about self-love.

The “right to betray” is therefore the opportunity to “design” and freely “color” one’s own existence and even that of others; this by expressing our inner world and emotions, with awareness.

The “social media” is the new ‘virtual platform’ that offers unlimited opportunities to betray “a la cart” so that people can live experiences for all types of sexual and emotional needs.
